A Secret Past

Few, firmly installed multi-modal orientation points are here complemented by flexible elements using and extending existing street furniture. In the fables the reader is not offered a ready code, but made to assume an inalienable epistemological and ethical responsibility. There is thus something paradigmatic in what Socrates decides to set to music, the harmony of notes, as an exception to his higher music, the philosophic harmony of ideas. This harmony of harmonies is the Aesopian act of Plato that conjoins, like pleasure and pain, the warring forces of mythos and logos.
